Bite-Size Conflict Workshops

“How to...” Series

Consensio’s “How to...” bite-size workshops enable delegates to become more self-aware of how they think and behave in conflict. The workshops focus on learning how to deal with conflict in a more collaborative, empathic and constructive way. Our “How to...” series includes a range of two-hour workshops, which can be delivered as stand-alone sessions or in modular format.

How to Adopt a Positive Conflict Mindset

Most of us have an ingrained negative mindset when it comes to conflict. This workshop will explore the difference between constructive and destructive conflict, empowering delegates to shift their negative conflict mindset to see conflict as an opportunity for innovation, growth and change.

How to Calm the Brain in Conflict

Conflict triggers our brain’s unconscious and automatic survival mechanism. This workshop explores what happens in our brain when we are in conflict and how our fight-flight-freeze response prevents us from having constructive conversations. Delegates will learn strategies to calm their brain to deal with conflict calmly and collaboratively.

How to Exit the Conflict Blame Cycle

When in conflict, we tend to fall into victim mode and blame others for the conflict we are experiencing. This workshop uncovers the blame cycle, explores why we fall into this cycle, and looks at how we can exit it to have healthier conflict conversations and workplace relationships.

“This is an excellent course. The pace, content and knowledge of the trainers was spot-on, making it the most enjoyable, challenging and relevant course I’ve been on.”

Head of HR Operations Channel 4 Television

How to Listen Without Judgement in Conflict

We all make assumptions and judgements about other people when we are in conflict. This workshop explores why we do this and how our judgements get in the way of our ability to listen and understand other people’s perspectives. The workshop also discusses how we can help others to listen to us.

How to Have Workplace Conflict Conversations

The hybrid workplace poses particular challenges when it comes to resolving conflict, including missing the warning signs of conflict or avoiding conflict conversations all together. This workshop looks at some of the challenges of a flexible workplace, and explores some of the key skills needed to have collaborative conflict conversations.

How to Communicate More Effectively in Conflict

This workshop focuses on key elements that make a conflict conversation constructive, with a focus on the power of language, tone and mindset. Delegates will learn a 3-step process for communicating more effectively in conflict, based on recent research in this area.

“The best course I’ve been on.
Expertly delivered by professionals
I had real confidence in.”
